VOLUNTEERS - GIVING... AND GETTING

Whether working backstage, front-of-house, at a desk, or hosting musicians in their home, volunteers assist in so many ways. Without them the festival wouldn't be the same; with them, we have a lot more fun!

“I didn't know much about chamber music when I volunteered,” says Ken, who has worked backstage for two festivals.

“Being at the dress rehearsals opened my ears to a whole new world. The level of musicianship is amazing, and now I'm inspired to learn more.”

“It’s not glamorous - but I know how important it is,” says Maureen who keeps the CFW database up-to-date. “I really wanted to contribute, and I enjoy the festival even more, knowing I’ve played a role.”

Thank you to Something a volunteer might get to see and hear. Roman Rabinovich and Michael Stephen Brown rehearse together outside the artist green room at the National Music Centre, July 21, 2023.
